A very happy 2016 to you all! We had a delightful time at the WHA in Portland. Our booth had a facelift, which received much positive comment. We were proud to publicize the wonderful new scholarship of our award winners. Members attended (and many live-Tweeted) some incredible panels on women’s history and with women’s historians. At the business meeting, we said thank you to Dr. Matt Basso for his service on the Steering Committee and welcomed Dr. Michael Lansing who will be joining the committee. Next fall we will have one opening for a member on the Steering Committee, and another opening for a graduate student representative on the Steering Committee. Please start thinking about which of our excellent members should help steer the Coalition into the future (maybe it is you)! I’m happy to take your nominations. Send them in to me at cdcahill@unm.edu or to the Coalition at cwwh.west@gmail.com. Our meeting also raised many excellent issues and our members had a variety of wonderful suggestions for action. We will be calling on you for assistance in carrying out some of these projects over the next few years. Let me give you a brief overview of some of them here.

Our membership rose last year to 109 members! Let’s keep up the good work. Be sure to renew your membership and keep us headed in the right direction. Please also remember to send us your donations!

While our membership is up, unfortunately, few of our members or the broader scholarly community are taking advantage of the various programs that the Coalition has developed to support scholarship on women and gender in the West. Neither the Writers’ Group nor the Mentoring Group have raised much interest at recent conferences. Neither met in October, as there were not any new submissions for the writers group and no call for the mentors. These are both such excellent opportunities, and the Coalition will be fusing the Mentoring Group into a “Professional Development Initiative.” So encourage any of your students or junior colleagues to submit drafts for next fall or stay tuned for professional development opportunities. We will include specific contacts for both programs in our summer/fall newsletter.

We are approaching our 35th Anniversary in 2018! The Strategic Planning Committee is leading efforts for a fundraiser we are calling “35 by 35” in honor of the event. We hope to raise savings to $35,000 over the next two years. In conjunction, we will like to collect our members’ memories of the Coalition that can be added to the CWWH archive at Arizona State University (Did you know there was a CWWH archive? To learn more, see the article included further on in the newsletter).

Finally, we discussed the low visibility of LGBTQ panels and scholarship at the WHA. As our mission is “to move the field of Western history in the directions of expanded time frames, limitless borders, and multicultural inclusiveness,” we determined that the Coalition should be one of the strong allies for such scholars and scholarship at the conference. Indeed, many of our members are among those scholars. We put together a committee to look into how we might best do this. Some suggestions included using the new Professional Development Committee and the Branded Session. But the committee is also happy to take your suggestions.

Before signing off, I’d like to thank our members who donated such wonderful items for our silent auction. You can see some of the gorgeous handmade pieces in the newsletter photographs. I’d also like to once again express my gratitude to Dr. Brian Collier for coordinating a Better Way Foundation Grant for the Coalition! Have a wonderful spring semester, and stay tuned to Facebook and the website for announcements about awards, sessions, and other Coalition programs this summer and fall!

Until then, be safe and productive,

Cathleen
CWWH Prizes

Irene Ledesma Prize

The recipient of the 2015 Irene Ledesma Prize is Megan Bilotte. Bilotte is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Wisconsin-Madison and her dissertation is entitled “Migrant Madres and Sugar Babies: Public Health and Family in the Sugar Beet Fields of Northern Colorado.”

From Committee Chair Sarah Eppler Janda:

We had an extraordinary pool of applicants this year. In all, we received fourteen applications from doctoral students at universities across the United States and in Canada. This marked a huge improvement over last year when the committee received only three. Several of the applications were strong, making it a difficult decision for the committee. The scoring rubric proved quite helpful in this task though and happily the committee reached unanimous agreement.

The committee felt that there were a number of very strong applications this year which bodes well for future scholarship on western women. While Meggan Bilotte’s proposal was the clear first choice of the committee we were also particularly impressed with four other proposals. These include Margaret Neubauer’s “Indian Child Welfare, Sovereignty, and Race in Cold War America,” Jeannette Estrurth’s “A Political History of the Silicon Valley: Structural Change, Urban Transformation, and Local Movements, 1945-1984,” Melissa Gismondi’s “The Character of a Wife: Gender, Power, and Prestige in Rachel Donelson Jackson’s Early America, 1760s-1820s,” and Natalie Sheidler’s “And They All Fell Silent: Violence Against Women in Butte, Montana, 1910-1950.”

On a final note, the process went very smoothly this year. Sending out repeated reminders, broad advertisement, faculty mentor encouragement, and removing the CWWH membership requirement all seemed to contribute to this. I wish to conclude with a special thanks to Elaine for all the support and information she provided and to Katrina and Matt for being both super easy to work with and prompt in carrying out our assigned tasks.

Armitage-Jameson Prize

The 2015 Armitage-Jameson Prize recipient is Elsie Paul, in collaboration with Paige Raibmon and Harmony Johnson, for Written as I Remember It: Teachings (teems ta’alaw) from the Life of a Sliammon Elder (Vancouver: University of British Columbia Press, 2014).

This book represents the collaboration of a Sliammon elder (Paul) with associate professor of history at UBC (Raibmon) and the elder’s granddaughter (Johnson). The book combines autobiography and Sliammon history in Paul’s own words and storytelling style. One committee member wrote of the book: “Reading Paul’s book gave me more simple pleasure in what history can achieve because of the thoughtfulness and intention of all the participants. Paul made me aspire to be a better historian.” Another wrote: “I found the introduction to be incredibly thought-provoking and engaging, and indeed the book’s accessibility and focus on Sliammon women provides numerous new historical insights into indigenous life and culture. It is also, quite simply, a remarkable work of oral history.” The member added, “The book is rich in detail, a model work of oral history, and a wonderful scholarly-community collaboration.” The third member wrote, “The methodology and linguistic work blew me away.”

The Prize Committee (chaired by Todd Kerstetter) received more nominations than previous award cycles, and the quality of material was outstanding. This is a clear sign of the growing interest and strong research projects focused on women and gender in the North American West.
At the 2014 annual meeting of the Western History Association, Gordon Bakken was given a lifetime achievement award from the Coalition for Western Women’s History for his many years of support and service. Dr. Bakken, Professor Emeritus at California State University, Fullerton, passed away two months later. Bakken had summed up his career in a single paragraph on his history department webpage: "I earned a B.S., M.S., Ph.D., and J.D. from the University of Wisconsin, have published twenty-three books and have two more under contract, have authored fifty-two articles and twenty-seven book chapters and encyclopedia entries, and am an active member of First Lutheran Church of Fullerton. I was named Organization of American Historians Distinguished Lecturer in 2007. I was the founding vice president of the California Supreme Court Historical Society and am past president of Phi Alpha Theta, the national honor society in history, and am co-advisor of the Theta Pi Chapter on the CSU, Fullerton campus. I am the series editor of American Liberty & Justice at the Texas Tech University Press."

These four sentences hardly do justice to the career of a historian whose research and publications spanned the breadth of western history, from the legal history of the Rocky Mountain region, to the practice of law in 19th century California, to a guide to archives at the Huntington Library, to mining law, to women murderers, to the history of big game hunting. Nor does this paragraph capture the full generosity of Bakken’s service to the historical profession and, in particular, his generosity to the Coalition for Western Women’s History.

“Going Public/ Going Collaborative”

Since 1982, the Coalition for Western Women’s History has fostered scholarship that brings western women’s and gender history to a more central place in the profession and beyond. This 2016 CWWH Roundtable continues that work in harmony with the WHA’s conference theme by focusing on scholars who have engaged in collaborations to bring their work to a broader public. Their presentations provide both inspiration and models for taking cutting-edge work about women and the West beyond the academy. Each presenter focuses on a different medium and the team it took to create the work. Cherstin Lyon has worked with students to create a series of radio interviews with community partners in the San Bernardino, California area including women of the Brown Berets. Lydia Otero’s prize-winning book on the extraordinary efforts of women to save the Tucson barrio has resulted in Otero’s collaboration with a team of Latin@ playwrights, local youth, and anthropologists to create site-specific performances on the grounds of the Tucson Convention Center in March 2016. Alexandra Minna Stern has teamed up with statisticians, digital humanists, and performance artists as well as other historians to create an on-line multimedia resource featuring the history of over 18,000 eugenic sterilizations carried out in California institutions from the 1920s to the 1950s. Finally, Gwen Westerman, Native American Artist in Residence for the Minnesota Historical Society, will present on her work on the exhibit redesign at the Pipestone National Monument, and more generally on art exhibition and its potential impact as public history.

Participants:
Moderator: Karen Leong, Arizona State University, karen.leong@asu.edu
Cherstin M. Lyon, California State University, San Bernardino, “This Place Matters”: Connecting Students to Community through Oral History and Digital Humanities Projects
Lydia R. Otero, University of Arizona, “Borderland Theater and Barrio Stories”
Alexandra Minna Stern, University of Michigan, “Archiving and Performing the Past: Patterns and Stories of Eugenic Sterilization in 20th Century California”

DON’T FORGET TO ATTEND THE 2016 COALITION BUSINESS MEETING!

CWWH Business Meeting
CWWH at the WHA: Breakfast
CWWH at the WHA: Sessions
Did you know that the Coalition has its own archival collection? It is true. Working with librarian Christine Marin, two of our founders, Sue Armitage and Betsy Jamison, donated many of the Coalition’s early documents to the Arizona Collection and archives at the Hayden Library and archives at Arizona State University in Tempe. Sue remembers, “Before Chris Marin offered the ASU library archive, the Coalition papers resided in a file drawer in my office. I agreed that they should be archived, but I still remember the pang of parting from the physical evidence of the first Women's West conference as I packed them up to send them to their new home.”

The archives currently hold 7 feet of CWWH records that include materials from 1982-1991. The bulk of these are the records from the conferences that led to the creation of the Coalition: the first national meeting devoted to western women's history, "The Women's West," in Sun Valley, Idaho on August 10-13, 1983, the second conference, "The Women's West in 1984," held in Park City, Utah on August 14-15, 1984, and the third conference, "The Women's West: Race, Class and Social Change," which took place in San Francisco, California on August 13-16, 1987. There are also a number of records regarding the creation and publication of two important anthologies in Western Women's History that grew out of the conferences, The Women's West (University of Oklahoma, 1987) and Writing the Range: Race, Class, and Culture in the Women's West (University of Oklahoma, 1997).

As Chris Marin recalls “I was at each of the conferences sponsored by the CWWH and met Betsy and Susan and we began a conversation about their donating records.” She was in a good position to do so, as she “was an Adjunct Professor in that department teaching courses that dealt with the history of Mexican American women, women of the west, and women in Arizona. My dual-role as a historian/archivist made it easier for the donation of the records of the CWWH to occur.” She was impressed; “both Betsy and Susan sent me the files they had in storage and they were very good at saving everything!...and the materials were in good condition, well preserved.” There’s definitely “a masters thesis and a dissertation is in the making,” she confirmed.

Why an archive? Well, as Betsy put it, “hey, we're historians. We've wrestled with women's under-representation in the archives throughout our professional careers, and we want to leave a legacy of all the hard work, creativity, sisterhood, struggle and sometimes fun that it has taken to bring women and gender to the centers of western history.” As we approach our 35th anniversary, let’s consider updating our archives and bringing them into the 21st century. Do you have material that should be included? Do you have suggestions? Let us know!

The Rural Women's Studies Association announces the launch of its blog, ruralwomensstudies.wordpress.com. Its purpose is to improve the visibility of rural women's studies research and activism around the world. We invite anyone working in the field of rural women's studies or working with rural women to submit material for possible inclusion in this blog to our editorial team. Interested? Renee Laegreid’s (University of Wyoming) article, “Finding the American West in Twenty-First Century Italy” was awarded the National Cowboy & Western Heritage Museum’s Western Heritage Award 2016.

Cynthia Culver Prescott (University of North Dakota) had an article “Representing the Ideal American Family: Avard Fairbanks and the Transformation of the Western Pioneer Monument” published in the Pacific Historical Review and discussed it on local radio. You can hear her interview at https://soundcloud.com/beyondfootnotes/cynthia-culver-prescott-the-pioneer-monuments-of-vard-fairbanks.

BYU-Idaho’s Andrea Radke-Moss presented a paper “Beyond Petticoats and Poultices: Finding a Women’s History of the Mormon-Missouri War of 1838” at the Beyond Petticoats and Poultices: Sources in Context for Mormon Women’s History conference. Her paper, which examined instances of sexual violence against Eliza R. Snow, proved to revelatory. New of her findings merited a story in the Salt Lake Tribune. Radke-Moss has written about the experience and more on the sources used for her research here: http://juvenileinstructor.org/eliza-r-snow-as-a-victim-of-sexual-violence-in-the-1838-missouri-war-the-authors-reflections-on-a-source/.

Leisl Carr Childers (University of Oklahoma) was awarded the Western Writers of America’s Contemporary Nonfiction Award for her book The Size of the Risk: Histories of Multiple Use in the Great Basin.

In her continuing bid for world domination, Mary Ann Irwin is now a Councilmember of the Society for Historians of the Gilded Age and Progressive Era (SHGAPE); a co-editor of H-California; and, after a brief stint as President, is now Secretary/Treasurer of the California Conference of the American Association of University Professors.

2016 Irene Ledesma Prize
Call for Applications

The Irene Ledesma Prize is awarded to a Ph.D. graduate student and intended to support research in western women’s and gender history. The $1,000 Prize supports travel to collections or other research expenses related to the histories of women and gender in the North American West. Applicants must be enrolled in a Ph.D. program at the time of application. The Coalition will award the Prize at the CWWH Breakfast during the Western History Association annual conference in St. Paul, Minnesota on October 22, 2016. The recipient will also be awarded a one-year complimentary membership in the CWWH. For more information visit the CWWH website: www.westernwomenshistory.org

Deadline for the 2016 Prize Submission: May 15, 2016

Proposals will be evaluated according to the following criteria:
- Significance of the overall project
- Applicant’s knowledge of primary sources
- Connection to broader theoretical/historiographical issues
- Applicant’s ability to address issues of gender and/or women’s history in the North American West
- Proposed budget details and research agenda

Application Procedure: To apply, submit one copy of the following (as a single PDF file) to each member of the committee:

1. Cover sheet with your name, contact information, project title, name of reference
2. Curriculum Vitae
3. A brief description of the research project and an explanation of how the prize funds would support the research (not exceeding three double-spaced pages, addressing the above criteria).
4. A line-item budget
5. Letter of support from the student’s dissertation advisor (to be sent separately)

2017 Call for Papers

57th Annual Conference of the Western History Association

November 1–4, 2017, San Diego, California

AGAINST THE GRAIN

The Program Committee seeks proposals that cut “against the grain,” that is, which challenge old and new orthodoxies about western history. We invite challenges on many fronts (and frontiers), though our meeting location in San Diego seems particularly suited to discussions that cut across conventional borders of western history. The 2017 Program also hopes to bridge the divide that has too often cut academic histories off from broader public conversations. Accordingly, we would like to spotlight projects that have successfully translated recent scholarship and effectively engaged wide audiences. We also encourage proposals about pedagogical innovations that rethink how we teach western histories to students at all levels.

The Program Committee welcomes a range of formats: panels, roundtables, workshops, and lightning rounds. Recognizing our members’ wide range of interests, the committee will consider proposals not directly related to the conference theme. But no matter the topic or your take on it, we are especially receptive to proposals that cut against the grain of academic conferences by dispensing with “standard” formats in favor of more innovative ways of presentation and discussion. We hope, in particular, to significantly increase participation by constructing sessions that involve more panelists and increase audience participation. For example, we envision several lightning round panels, in which as many as ten or twelve presenters give very brief (no more than five minutes) summaries of new research on a particular topic, leaving time for a discussion among the panelists and with the audience.

We strongly encourage full session submissions, although we will consider single papers. When submitting an entire session or panel, the designated contact person should submit the proposal. Please include a brief abstract (250 words) that outlines the purpose of the session. Each paper proposal, whether individual or in a session, should include a one-paragraph abstract; each presenter should submit a one-page c.v., with address, phone, and e-mail. Indicate any equipment needs. The committee assumes that all listed individuals have agreed to participate. Electronic submissions are required and should be sent, with supporting materials, as a single PDF document to 2017 WHA Program Co-chairs Katherine Benton-Cohen, Andrew Graybill, and Kelly Lytle-Hernandez at wha2017call4papers@gmail.com. The submission deadline for single papers is September 1, 2016. For complete panel proposals, the deadline is December 1, 2016.
